The hidden threat of fleas and ticks

- Cats can “hide” fleas and ticks. Cats are known for masking symptoms of infestation, and fleas and ticks can be small and difficult to see.
- Grooming can be a sign of fleas or ticks. You might think your cat is just grooming off dirt, when he or she is actually grooming off fleas, ticks or flea poop.
- Fleas can cause blood loss, disease and tapeworms. Fleas can also cause uncomfortable skin problems in cats like flea allergy dermatitis (FAD).
- Fleas can quickly infest your home, laying up to 2000 eggs in their lifetime.¹
- Fleas and ticks are more common in cats than you might think. Cats are not taken to the veterinarian as often as dogs, which is one reason an infestation might go unchecked.
